About the park

Auriol Park is a designated King George V Playing Field situated in Worcester Park, in the Northern end of the borough within the Auriol Ward. It is approximately 14.5 acres in size and has vehicle access off of Salisbury Road. Popular with dog walkers and used for sporting fixtures all year round including football and bowls

History

In the 17th Century, the area where Stoneleigh now lies was part of the Great Park of Nonsuch Palace. In 1731 the Nonsuch estate was sold and the Great Park, by then known as Worcester Park, was divided into farmland.

Auriol A H Auriol-Barker was a solicitor who moved to the rapidly growing suburb of Worcester Park in the 1890s. He founded the Worcester Park Polo Club and continued to play for the club over the next thirty years. Auriol Park was the field on which the club kept the polo ponies.

Between the world wars, demand for houses on commuter routes into London meant that this area of the borough built up rapidly. In November 1934, Barker sold the land to the District Council, who acquired it as a recreation area for the growing local community.

Auriol Park is one of the many open spaces dedicated to King George V. After the King's death in 1936, the Nation wanted a suitable memorial to the monarch. The result was the King George's Fields Foundation, formed with the aim of establishing playing fields in the King's memory, across the UK.

The park officially opened in 1958. It now consists of football pitches, a children's playground, a multi-use games area, tennis courts and a bowling green.
